Have your say on the Teven Quarry proposal

The Department of Planning and Environment is asking for community feedback on an application to increase production at Holcim’s quarry located at Stoker’s Lane, Teven.

The proposal would allow the quarry to:
- extract and process up to 500,000 tonnes of rock per year
- recycle and process up to 10,000 tonnes of concrete per year
- transport quarry products off-site by road
- return the site to a natural condition at the end of the quarry’s life.

“Currently the quarry turns around 265,000 tonnes of rock per year, so a significant increase is being proposed,” a Department spokesperson said.

“Listening to the community’s opinion is an important part of the assessment process, I encourage everyone to have a look and share their thoughts.”

The development application, environmental impact statement and other documents can be viewed until Monday 2 February 2015:
- online at majorprojects.nsw.gov.au
