Sutherland Hospital upgrade approved

Sutherland Hospital will get a new and expanded Emergency Department and other new facilities after the Department of Planning and Environment approved a major upgrade.

A departmental spokesperson said the redevelopment will see the new Emergency Department provided within a new three storey building expansion.

“The approved redevelopment also includes a new acute inpatient services unit, including a high dependency unit and a general medical unit.”

“There will also be a reconfiguration of parking areas and the internal access road, as well as associated landscaping,” the spokesperson said.

Sutherland Hospital is a major metropolitan hospital and associated teaching hospital of the University of NSW.
